

Rebecca Keating spoke on Taylor Wessing's Disputes Reimagined podcast: 'Managing the rise of legal activism'

Rebecca Keating spoke on the third episode of Taylor Wessing's Disputes Reimagined podcast titled: 'Managing the rise of legal activism'.

In this podcast, Rebecca spoke alongside Katie Chandler (Taylor Wessing), Troy Yoshino (Winston & Strawn) and Alex Cooper (ClientEarth) to discuss how rising activism is influencing corporate strategy, accelerating climate-related disputes across global markets, and the new types of legal, reputational, and regulatory challenges emerging as a result.

Topics covered include:

- How political activism is influencing corporate strategy and accountability.
- The rise of climate-related disputes and ESG litigation.
- The growing role of public and moral drivers in legal claims.
- The global nature of activist litigation.
- Emerging challenges for businesses, including AI-related group claims, reputational risk, court capacity, and demand for more proactive disputes preparedness.

To listen, please see here.